

Kush Sachdeva, M.D.

Kush Sachdeva, M.D. is board certified in Internal Medicine, Medical Oncology and Hematology. He completed both his Internal Medicine as well as a fellowship in Hematology and Oncology at prestigious Penn State Milton S Hershey Medical Center. Dr. Sachdeva has been in practice with Southern Oncology-Hematology Associates for over 18 years. He currently serves as President and Managing Partner of the practice.

He is Current Chair of Inspira South Campus Cancer Committee. He is also Medical and research director of Inspira South Campus Cancer program, Director National accreditation Program for Breast Cancer, Chair NRG (National Research group), Lead for South Campus Cancer service line.

He is actively involved in multiple committees at Inspira Health including Inspira Health Partners Finance Committee, Peer Review Committee, Professional Practice Evaluation Committee and Continuing Medical Education (CME) committee.

Dr. Sachdeva was voted as "Top Physician of The Year" for year 2017 and 2018 by South Jersey Magazine.

He has been author of many publications and is an active member of American Society of Clinical Oncology (ASCO).

In his spare time, he has been actively involved with Indian American cancer association and currently serving as the vice president for IACA which is a charitable organization involved in a mission to advance cancer care and education for physicians of Indian subcontinent.

